

DPI Reorganization

A Stronger DPI for Wisconsin

As part of our strategic plan, the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction has reorganized to better meet the needs of students, educators, schools, and communities. While our internal structure has changed, our mission remains the same—and our ability to support you is stronger than ever.

WHY THIS MATTERS TO YOU:

Built on Community Voice

This reorganization reflects feedback from Wisconsinites during the DPI's statewide listening sessions. Your input helped shaped these changes.

Grounded by a Shared Vision

This change moves us closer to our vision: Engaged learners creating a better Wisconsin together.

Smarter, Aligned Support

We've restructured into new divisions, offices, bureaus, and sections that work more closely together — reducing silos, improving coordination, and delivering better service.

The Bottom Line

This is more than a new structure. It's a stronger, more responsive DPI — designed to better serve schools, districts, and communities statewide.

Focused on Service

You will continue to receive the same expert support from DPI staff, but now we are better connected internally to get you the answers and resources you need faster.
